

Men's Dressing Table

On the dressing table in the Blue room are a number of objects the Lee men would use to get themselves ready for the day. Men in Colonial America wore wigs like the one you see here. Wigs had to be styled with curling tongs and rollers to keep their shape. People in Colonial America did not bathe often so lavender was used to mask nasty smells!